RUSSIANS PASS THROUGH CITY Fifty Muscovites Are on Their Way to Western Points.

About fifty Russian immigrants, including the United States, stockmen and others, nowomen and children, arrived at Union Station last night over the Wabash from the East. They are on their way to points in Nebraska. Colorado and the Territories.
They are from the southern part of Russia, and some of them speak German. They formed a picturesque group in the second-class waiting-room, with their luggage, most of which was in bags, lying on the floor. The younger children were sleeping on improvised beds. Some of the women held cooking utensiis in their hands.
Several boys, about 15 years old, attracted much attension because of the long boots they wore. The men complained of the heat in the waiting-room.
Some of the immigrants departed last night, and others arrived too late to make connection with trains for the West, and had to remain over until this morning. They spent the night in the waiting-room and will go west by the Wabash and the Missouri Pacific roads. East. They are on their way to points in Littleton, Mass., Nov. 27.—Fully half a hundred cattle in this vicinity are affected with foot and mouth disease.

The trouble broke out less than a week ago, and has spread rapidly. The contagion appeared among cattle which had come in contact with no other animals of their kind for months. In some cases, however, it is claimed that the disease can be indirectly traced along a line of cattle brought from the Brighton stock yards.

Jacob Wolfe, carpenter, of 1230 N. Ninth st., 3rd Ward, St. Louis, says: "When I first came to 2t. Louis there was not a bridge across the river; there was only a ferry. I helped to build the Courthouse over forty years ago, and worked on nearly all the old buildings in the city. There was not a railroad in 8%. Louis, so a word or two from me to my many friends and acquaintances should carry considerable more weight than if I lived, say, in the New England States. Mrs. Wolfe and I have had more than one attack of backache. Mine was not remarkably severe, but it was annoying. Noticing Doan's Kidney Pills advertised at "Wolf-Wilson's," corner of Sixth street and Washington avenue, induced me to go there for a box and Mrs. Wolfe and I commenced the treatment. If it has not performed absolutely what is promised, if the action of the pills was not a long way ahead of anything we ever used, I would be the last resident in St. Louis to publicly recommend them."

it was a straight run in, with no stops. This was gratifying intelligence to the travelers, who ached from repeated bumping against the woodwork of the car.

A mile east of Wanda there was an explosion and the train came to a sudden stop. Trainmen came back with news that the locomotive, the "six-spot," had blown out half a dozen flues in the boiler simultaneously, and the trip was at an end until an extra engine could be secured.

Mr. Henry and his bride elect alighted, and, accompanied by the farmers, crossed Indian Creek on the railroad trestle and walked the remaining three miles into town. To add to their discomfort, soon after they started a snowstorm set in.

Arrived at the county seat, a marriage license was soon secured, and the wedding took place in the County Courtroom. Judge William P. Early, who leaves the office next Monday, performed the ceremony. At the earnest request of the young couple, the Judge and County Clerk promised not to divulge news of the wedding, and it has not yet been entered upon the records.

noon, as the old negro woman entered the barn to gather eggs, she was confronted by two men, who struck her and fied.

The family is composed of Mrs. Hayden, two grown daughters, a son, the old negro cook and two negro men who do the farm work. Yesterday about 5 o'clock in the afternoon the cook gave the alarm that the two men were in the chicken-house. The son, Gregory Hayden, and the two farm hands, who were at the barn, all rushed to the house for their guns.

The unknown men escaped through the corn field Gregory and the hird boys went to a public scheolheuse near by, which it is thought is the rendezvous of these men, but found no trace of them. Gregory took one of the negroes and continued the search, sending the other back to guard the house.

This man on his return home saw a strange man standing near the orchard fence, lighting his pipe, and fired two shots at him, one taking effect in the arm, the other in the chest and face.

Sheriff Dierker was summoned from Wentzville. He met the wounded man at St. Paul to-day and brough him to Wentzville, where he took the 5 o'clock train for St. Charles. The wounded man claims he is from Dubuque, Ia., and his name is Willian O'Connell. He was en route to St. Louis.
